Teaching at ASU Using Zoom

All classes can be hosted in Zoom and all instructors who are participating in testing our capacity to deliver instruction via Zoom can access their class links directly from My ASU.

Hosting your classes in Zoom

Hosting live (synchronous) classes and meetings online with students is made possible through Zoom. As ASU's centrally supported, easy-to-use video conferencing platform, Zoom provides high-definition, interactive collaboration tools and telephone conferencing to use for hosting your classes.

Access and launch Zoom directly from MyASU: Click on your Zoom personal meeting link (as pictured below), and then enter your ASURITE. For more information, view the Zoom guide for faculty.

All instructors and students participating in testing Zoom will be able to quickly access their class Zoom links right from My ASU. Students, will see the zoom link under their "My Classes" tab.

Be sure to test your audio, video and equipment well before the start of class and do not conduct these tests from a classroom.

Tips
Note: Each tip has embedded links with instructions.

- Always test your audio and video well before the start of class. If you are facing a low bandwidth signal, shutting off your video will help. If you are experiencing connectivity issues, there are always call-in number options (with international options).

- Share your screen to show slides or other materials and ask students to share their screens to present.
- Annotate and mark on the screen, or draw on a whiteboard.
- Break your class into groups for discussions or projects using the Breakout Rooms feature.
- Use the chat feature to answer questions or share learning resources.
- Record your class so students can review materials.
- Poll your students to check for understanding.
- Host virtual office hours.
- Meet with students.
- Engage with small groups or project teams.

Communication with Students

Below is a sample message that can be sent to students who contact you directly with questions about accessing the course:

> Our class will meet via Zoom at our regularly scheduled time <insert time>. You can access the Zoom course links from My ASU, under your My Classes tab.
>
> Further instructions are available here.
